LEADER patrons who want the best meats for their table should call on Mr. Emil Weiss, who has opened a store at 223 Market street. His ad appears in this impression and it will pay to watch for his frequent changes.

This changes matters. Yesterday when the Court examined the witnesses against Mr. John T. Cogan, Jr., it was found that he had only committed a breach of the peace, for which a fine was assessed. The many people who make a mountain of a thing until they come to swear to it, and then it becomes a mere mole hill.

After La Grippe—What?

AFTER MANY YEARS.

"Stokes" Sparks Visits Old Cronies

After a Long Absence.

Mr. John Sparks, who was a familiar figure in Mayville in the late '80s, and who was universally known as "Stokes," swooped down on the old city and his few remaining "cronies" a day or so since.

He once conducted a photograph gallery on the site of Oddfellows Hall, and his social "gang" comprised Colonel William B. Carpenter, now of Cincinnati, and Messrs. C. C. Russell, Charles H. Frank, Ben P. McClanahan and Robert T. Cummings, all yet living in this city excepting the latter, who has passed away.

Mr. Sparks left here in '91 and went throughout the War.

Since then he has been making his home in the South, at present residing in San Antonio, Texas.

He left yesterday for a visit to friends at Elizaville.

LEADER coughs often continue for months and sometimes lead to fatal results. The patient is supposed to have passed the danger point. Foley's Kidney Cure affords positive protection and security from these coughs. J. Jas. Wood & Son and Armstrong & Co.

BLACK PATTI TONK.

"All comers may look alike" but "All shows are not alike;" this suggestion is apropos to the coming of the Black Patti Troubadours. Patronize the troupe for the performance of this remarkable company. The Troubadours enjoy a standing in theatrical circles which the envy of nearly all promoters of amusement enterprises. Through the remarkable talents of its versatile members, the extraordinary excellence of its stage performance, and its phenomenal popularity, it has become one of the most valuable pieces of theatrical property in the country. Messrs. Cooks and Nolan, the founders and promoters of the enterprise, have realized a handsome fortune from their investment. They are expected to show, and seem to have struck the right attraction in the Black Patti Troubadours and this company's great stage performance. At Washington Opera-house tonight. Jockey reserved for colored people.

close this address without at least depicting the deplorable condition of affairs with which we are all acquainted and in which we are all so vitally interested; and still more recent did I not point out to you how utterly opposed to all the teachings and practice of Oddfellowship is the spirit of hate, robbery and murder that would find triumph in our dear old Commonwealth. Sons of the immortal Wilkes, then, stand strong in old Kentucky, these things ought not to be. Surely we have fallen on evil days. The times require brave men, true men; men who the lust of office cannot move, men who the spoils of office buy. I charge you, therefore, this day to examine your selves and see what spirit controls you. Is it the spirit of the intolerant and persecuting Mohammedan, the unscrupulous Turk, who is ever ready to immolate upon the altar of his faith the man of another creed? Or is it rather the spirit of the good Samaritan who, when his enemy fell among thieves, was wounded, robbed and left for dead, remembered that after all he was his brother and so ran to his relief? Is it the spirit of the man of a conscience ennobled by your instruction, and your example?

Indeed, my Brothers, least of all does it become the duty of the man of a conscience to take a larger view of things than his own. WHY NOT HAVE IT?

Movement on Foot to Hold an Old-Fashioned Fair This Fall.

The suggestion has been made by some of our business men, "Why not have a fair this fall? The idea is a good one, and if the proper interest is shown the result will materialize. What's everybody's business becomes nobody's; so for fear that this apportion may become true we publish a call for our merchants and county friends to meet in this city Monday, May 7th, and see if a company cannot be formed which will carry out the suggestion. The most beautiful fairgrounds in the country are at hand. These can be rented upon satisfactory terms. If judicious advertising, liberal premiums and honest dealing people can be brought to us. Money is abundant, and there are enough merchants, stock men and agriculturists to subscribe and take hold to push it to success.

Therefore we urge our citizens and friends in the county to meet at the Council Chamber next County Court day and consider the plans, policy and personnel which will govern a company that will conduct it to sure success to those who attend and to those who are behind it.

A MEASURE OF MERIT.

Maysville Citizens Should Weigh Well This Evidence.

Proof of merit lies in the evidence. Convincing evidence in Maysville is not the testimony of strangers. But the endorsement of Maysville people.

That's the kind of proof given here—the statement of a Maysville citizen.

Mrs. John E. Burns of West End, near Pogue's, says:

"I am greatly pleased with the benefits I received from the use of Doan's Kidney Pills, which I procured at J. Jas. Wood & Son's Drugstore, corner West Second and Market streets. I used them to be the best kidney remedy I know of. I have heard a number of persons speak of the great relief obtained from the use of Doan's Kidney Pills."

ODDFELLOWSHIP!

THE ORDER'S BIRTHDAY

Its Observance in Maysville and Elsewhere.

MANY VISITING BRETHREN.

Addresses, Music, Luncheon, Work, and Other Entertainment.

The exercises arranged by the Committee to observe the eighty-first anniversary of the Order were held in Oddfellows Hall yesterday afternoon and evening.

There were many visitors from Ripley, Manchester, Flemingsburg, Maysville, Augusta, Concord, Helena, Tolleboro, Elizaville, Petta, Johnsonville, Vanceburg, Bratton, and Aberdeen, among the number being a few daughters of Hebeek.

The Hall had been very prettily decorated with potted plants, flags and bunting.

A number of the visitors arriving on the morning train the Hall was opened at 10 o'clock and the time taken up with a graphophone entertainment under the direction of Mr. John C. Karkley.

The afternoon work began at 2 o'clock with William H. Cox Noble Grand, Thomas H. Plaster Vice Grand and John Duley Chaplain.

The preliminary to the address was an arranged ritualistically by the Sovereign Grand Lodge, and was chiefly to promulgate the tenets of the Order.

Then came the address of the afternoon, delivered by Prof. E. Reganette, which will be published in full in tomorrow's Ledger, and which for finished diction, exquisite thought and appropriateness will speak for itself.

This being ended, and time yet remaining, the noble Grand had volunteers for short talks from local and visiting brethren.

At 5 o'clock the banquet hall was thrown open and for the next two hours no part of the day was the center of attraction.

Here a most tempting lunch was served by the daughters of Hebeek, and most of the day was more enjoyed by either visitors or local members.

At 8 o'clock the work again began in the Lodgeroom and continued until a late hour.

A candidate from Concord Lodge No. 231 was given the Second and Third Degrees.

In the Second Degree, Hyron Birdy, related as Noble Grand with George Schwartz Vice-Grand, the minor positions filled by members from each lodge.

In the Third Degree, P. G. M. William H. Cox presided as Noble Grand and Hyron Birdy as Vice-Grand, with Thomas L. Luman Conductor, W. L. Brose, Warden, Priests of the Degrees being—W. H. Corwin, Initiator; John R. Cochran, First; Harry Walsh, Second; Albert N. Huff, Third.

The work was well done throughout, and at its close the visitors expressed themselves as both instructed and delighted.

The day was a most pleasant one to all who participated in the exercises, which were appropriately commensurate with the character of the anniversary of the Independent Order of Oddfellows in the United States.

EXERCISES ELSEWHERE.

ADDRESS ON ODDFELLOWSHIP AT PARIS BY ALLAN D. COLE, ESQ., OF THIS CITY.

At the anniversary celebration of American Oddfellowship at Paris last evening the following able address was delivered by Allan D. Cole, Esq., of this city:

Brother Oddfellows, Ladies and Gentlemen: Ever since I roamed the fields of Bourbon as a boy at school I have felt deeply attached to her people, and it is with genuine pleasure to me, I assure you, that in after years I am permitted to address them on the important subject of Oddfellowship. In this glad hour, in the celebration of our Order's natal day, when all Nature has awakened from the dead of winter; "When that," as Chaucer quaintly says, "we here the fowles sing and that the trees green for the spryng;" what better time than this to awaken our slumbering thoughts, and from the ashes of our dead souls to rise again, pure and unalloyed, the principles of Friendship, Love and Truth?

The history of the world, both sacred and profane, bears witness to the use of many a memorial of great events. Such an event was the birth of the Independent Order of Oddfellows; and when I consider the history of our Order, I am overwhelmed by the greatness of the subject. What part of this broad land of ours has not felt its benign influence? What part of this broad land, extending far beyond the confines of our native land, its deeds are rehearsed from the frozen regions of Norway and Sweden to sunny Italy, in Australia, basking in hot distant solitude of India, in Chili and Peru, lying under constellations strange to our eyes, the stars of the Southern hemisphere, and even in our far-off possession, the Philippine Archipelago, where every twelfth soldier is an Oddfellow. In brief, though like the planting of a grain of mustard seed, was its beginning. Today one million choice spirits, men of honesty, probity and good demeanor, scattered throughout the habitable globe, under twenty flags, imbued with the principles of our Order, live to bless mankind. How many of those little, unremembered acts of kindness shown—which mean so much to the overburdened heart, in distress or in the pain of pain—I cannot tell, for time would fail me to tell. I know, that no besides such deeds—exemplifying, I may say, the breath and finer spirit of our principles—three million dollars are yearly spent by us to bury the dead, to relieve the widows and to educate the orphans." Thus on every wind that blows come tidings of sorrow assuaged and want relieved.

The name of our Order is the antithesis of its aspiration. If I were asked briefly to state the supreme duty of Oddfellowship, I should answer that it is to be against evil in all its forms.

If again I were asked how it is proposed to conduct this warfare, I should answer that with us "Friendship for mankind" is the contest, the gentle influence of love supply the weapon, truth consecrates the effort and leads to victory.

How much, how very much, it is indebted to these principles working in and through the lives of Oddfellows may not even be approximated; but it is at any rate the distinction of every Oddfellow that he is governed by them and that he brings them to bear upon the multitudinous affairs of life. So, my brothers, I would say to you, that to study the principles upon the principles by which our Order has become great until you become filled with the love of them; and when you are impressed with the spectacle of what has been achieved by means of them, I would have you reflect that these results have been attained by men who knew their duty and had the courage to do it; and, reflecting, again resolve that, so far as in you lies, the glory of our order shall at least not be diminished. Remember, the goal of our endeavors is nothing short of this, that, as with every closing day there are gathered within the ever-widening circle of our Order new found brothers, we must not be content until, in the dawn of a brighter day, having gathered all within, there shall be no more odd fellows.

I have spoken of the greatness of our Order because I want to remind you that we are contending for a higher ideal than those who do not enjoy similar privileges, and to establish by manifest proof the merits of the man who give it birth, for it is right and becoming on this occasion a tribute should be paid to his memory.

Eighty-one years ago today there dwelt in the city of Baltimore five men, of whom Thomas Whitley was chief. He was not a learned man, nor a statesman, nor was he in any wise gifted above his fellows except in this,—he was filled with the spirit of righteousness.

The value of such a spirit cannot be expressed in words; for it is vindicated the greatness of real goodness and the goodness of real greatness.

Beginning with the simple truth, "I have not one father: I have not one God created us;" he reasoned that if God is our Father then are we his sons; if sons, then brothers.

seen their standard high advanced, though not in the plenitude of their glory, the venerable patriarch passed on to his reward.

Far beyond my poor power is it to say anything to the glory of this extraordinary soul, for of such it must be said that their actions, their achievements alone praise them. His loftiest praise therefore has already been spoken; yet I cannot forbear to observe that he early learned the great lesson how to live well. There never was a time when his merits were so fully acknowledged as now. His fame has been growing and brightening as morning brightens into perfect day. And of how few can it be said, as of him, that their deeds, when weighed in the balance, have been found equal to their fame. These things then, my brothers,—temperance, industry, integrity, doing justice and loving mercy—these simple things to their everlasting praise be it spoken—are what made his life a blessing to the world and have given his name a place not in stone, but in the hearts of men.

The lesson of his life comes to us with peculiar force today. Impressed with the responsibility of the trust imposed if as your Grand Warden I should

INDIGESTION

Cured by Johnson's Dyspepsia Cure

"I suffered over two years with Indigestion and Nervous Dyspepsia, unable to eat or sleep. I tried several physicians and different remedies, but they only helped me for a short time. A friend advised me to take Johnson's Dyspepsia Cure. I have taken three boxes, and am now feeling better than for two years. I have a good appetite, sleep well and have none of the symptoms of Indigestion or Dyspepsia. While I have gained ten pounds in weight within a couple of months. I am taking pleasure in recommending Johnson's Dyspepsia Cure wherever I can. It is the best medicine I have ever used for this trouble. It is sold by all druggists and has marked results."—L. A.
